

SAY IT:

Determination is deciding it's worth it to finish what you've started.

KNOW IT:

Ask a kid:

- When do you most want to give up?
- Tell about a time you showed great determination.

Ask a grown up:

- Who is the most determined person you know and why?
- Was there a time when you were growing up that you showed determination and it paid off?

SEE IT:

Read the story The Little Engine That Could by Watty Piper (or find it on YouTube). How did the train show determination? In what one area of your life right now do you need to say, "I think I can?" Make a plan to remind each other to be determined in those areas this month.

BE IT:

Write the word DETERMINATION on a piece of paper. Work together as a family to show determination and make as many words as you can out of those letters. Set a goal and see if you can have determination to reach that goal!

Kids and families can enjoy learning about DETERMINATION:
deciding it's worth it to finish what you've started.
by watching the Adventure with Artie.
